

Just Along for the Ride

Take a good look at the numbskull riding in the back of this truck. It would be one thing if he was sitting down like his friend (which isn't a good thing to do either), but this joker is riding high on the side of the truck. What an idiot!

You can imagine how easy it would be for the driver to make an unexpected turn or sudden stop causing this guy to lose his balance and smear his gray-matter all over the pavement.

I'm not sure why they are back there. Maybe there wasn't room up front. Perhaps they're making sure the cargo doesn't fall out back. Or it could be that the driver just doesn't like them and hopes they will fall off. Whatever the reason, folks, you should know that there are plenty of fatalities each year involving this very act. Please don't be one of the next ones. Ride in the cab or take another vehicle.